Triptow examines the damage to her car from a Tuesday afternoon accident at a North Campus Drive crosswalk. The front end-wrinkle was the cause of a crash with a Toyota.

'Maneuvering' begins

T. Lebanon (UPI)—The shooting died down, but the unknown risks and the hatred still dividing religious factions threaten to process designed to bring last to the country.

With the cease-fire, the only stepped step toward peace was a invocation of a so-called national council. If and when it is areas of dispute are far more than the few things council may have in common. The 12 Lebanese leaders sit down the Saudi and Syrian observers bargaining on the future police of Lebanon, a preliminary just decide everything from the conference to its agenda.

Already the maneuvering has started. Prime Minister Cheifk Wazzan's offer to resign, apparently to meet Syrian demands, caused former Christian President Camille Chamoun to refuse to meet with the other 11 Lebanese leaders designated as council members.

In addition, the government view is that any recommendations the council may make will have to go through a constitutional process to be accepted. That is not the view of all those who oppose the government.

A lack of progress in the talks or hesitation to implement reforms is likely to be interpreted as a sign of bad faith, and traditionally in Lebanon that has led to violence.

"As long as the government shows it wants to be fair, I think we can pull it off," a senior American official said.

But he conceded that the biggest obstacle to ending the deep distrust that has spawned eight years of brutal fighting will be getting the Christians to share more of the power with Lebanon's Moslems, now believed to be a large majority of the population.

The U.S. official, while expressing optimism, predicted "a lot of shouting matches and perhaps violence" before the Christians agree to give up any power.

In a country that is about 40 percent Christian, the Christians dominate most institutions. The Shiite Moslems, the largest group in Lebanon, are largely powerless.

The United States, which helped negotiate the cease-fire, is counting largely on a belief that the Lebanese are suffering from "war weariness" and are ready to bury their deep differences.

Even if the official American view is correct and the 12 Lebanese leaders do agree among themselves, there is no guarantee Syria will like the results.

Testimony begins in Gilmore case

By VINCE WATSON
Staff Writer

The two widows of Gary Gilmore's victims entered Fourth District Court Monday, seeking a $1 million share of the royalties from Gilmore's life story.

Attorneys for both the prosecution and the defense presented their opening statements before Judge David Sam, following a 4½-hour jury selection process.

Colleen H. Jensen, widow of Max Jensen, and Deborah Jean Bushnell, widow of Benny Bushnell, both filed wrongful death suits and in 1977 Mrs. Bushnell was granted $567,000. One year later, Mrs. Jensen was awarded $620,000. Both claims have gone unpaid because there was no money in Gilmore's estate.

The two widows are seeking a share of the royalties from publicity generated during recent years. A large portion of the royalties stem from the best-selling book by Norman Mailer, "The Executioner's Song," and the television movie of the same name.

Ray P. Ivie, the Provo attorney representing the widows, said that because of the publicity surrounding the Gilmore case, representatives from Hollywood such as Paul Anka, Lawrence Schiller and Norman Mailer were interested in telling his story. Ivie said Universal Studios wanted to market Gilmore's life story in movie theaters throughout the country.

"Deborah, Colleen and the kids had judgments for millions, but they never received 10 cents," Ivie told the jury.

Michael Hansen, defense attorney, said the fundamental issue is whether the defendants should be held legally responsible to pay money in cases of wrongful death.

"We will hear a lot about victim's rights . . . but the defendants also have rights that need to be protected," Hansen said. "The plaintiffs have no right to collect wrongful death actions."

The defense also said that during the alleged conspiracy to keep money from the estate, events were happening very rapidly. Attorneys contended that during that period of time, the widows did not complain or object, and are presenting the problem now because they have had the chance to view it with hindsight.

Ivie called Gilmore's uncle, Vernon Damico, as his first witness. "Gary was a man who lived his own convictions," Damico said. "He was shy, and he always asked permission to do something. He even asked once if he could get a glass of water."

Damico said that Gilmore trusted him. When asked by Ivie if he had trusted Gilmore, Damico said, "I did not particularly trust him."

Damico is scheduled to resume testimony for the prosecution this morning. The trial is expected to last until Oct. 6.

Gilmore killed Benny Bushnell, 26, from Pasadena, Calif., and Max Jensen, 24, from Montpelier, Idaho, in July of 1976 during armed robberies in Provo.

Hatred threatens peace

A 12-month-old baby will soon be returned to his foster mother in Payson after being abducted Saturday. The natural mother of the infant was arrested in Colorado in connection with the kidnapping, according to Payson Police Sergeant Gary Adams.

Julie Jennings, 20, Aurora, Colo., the natural mother of the child, was arrested early Monday morning and charged with kidnapping, Adams said.

The baby, Trent D. Pederson, was found in Aurora and is being cared for by the Colorado Social Services. His foster mother, DeAnn Bjarnson, 28, 292 S. 600 West, Payson, said she picked him up as soon as she received clearance. Adams said later that Bjarnson received clearance Monday afternoon and had left for Colorado.

The baby was abducted Saturday around 9:45 a.m. when two women came to the Bjarnson home, said Adams. They told the 10-year-old son who answered the door that they needed to use the telephone to call for help.

Two women

One of the women took the child from a bedroom and the two women left the home, and drove away in an older model turquoise station wagon driven by a man. Bjarnson told police she was in an adjacent room when the incident occurred.

Leann Morgan, 22, Springville, was arrested and charged with a Class A misdemeanor for custodial interference, Adams said. She was assigned a state attorney and pleaded not guilty.

Morgan was released on her own recognizance and has been ordered to appear on Oct. 10 in the Spanish Fork Circuit Court for a preliminary hearing, said Sgt. Michael Openshaw of the Payson Police. The male driver of the car has not yet been arrested, Adams said.

Payson police said they believe the child's natural father may also be involved with the abduction, but they may have trouble locating him because he is a transient.

Custody battle

Adams said the child had been the subject of a recent custody battle between the child's natural father and Bjarnson. According to Payson Police Chief Jim Box, Bjarnson had just been given legal custody of the child.

Box said he would be working closely with the Utah County Attorney's Office for Jennings' extradition before additional information concerning the incident would be released.

Jim topic: nature

righteous dominion of other living creatures to his own extinction, according to Pister, who will present an illustrated Sunday's Forum assembly at 10 a.m. in the center.

Executive secretary of the Desert Fishes and an associate fishery biologist for the Department of Fish and Game, said it's a sad and ironic that man's survival is so linked with his dominion over his felines.

Successful in exercising righteous dominion over the animal kingdom, Pister said, but not successful, it may be only a matter of time, too, will perish," he said.

Suspected molester arrested

A 35-year-old male suspect was arrested Monday night in the Harris Fine Arts Center in connection with the alleged molestation of an 18-year-old BYU student, according to University Police Chief Robert Kelshaw.

"The girl managed to get free and got a custodian," Kelshaw said. "Some custodial workers held the suspect while a call was made to the University Police."

Kelshaw said the suspect is not associated with BYU and does not live in the area. No one was injured in the incident. The suspects name will be released Tuesday.

Kelshaw said this is the fourth incident of sexual molestation reported on BYU campus since July.

Provo airport to receive federal grant

By SHANNON HALL

The Provo Municipal Airport will receive a $341,507 grant from the Federal Aviation Administration for improvements, according to Jim Mathis, airport manager.

Mathis said the federal government will fund 90.94 percent of the airport improvement package, while the city and state will pay the remaining $34,023.

The improvement plans include replacing taxiway lighting, improving the airport drainage system, lengthening and strengthening the runway, which will enable larger planes to land, and constructing a terminal building for passengers.

Construction on the north access road began on Monday and is expected to be completed in two weeks. The road work will cost $38,613, about $5,000 more than originally expected. However, Mathis said the increase will allow for a larger intersection with better drainage.

Construction for the taxiway lighting system will begin in a month and will probably be completed this fall, he said. The lighting system is expected to cost $58,941.

Construction on the two ramping systems, which was originally scheduled to start at the beginning of November, has been delayed until spring. The delay is the result of construction companies busy repairing flood damages, Mathis said.

Ward makes burgers a habit

By ERIC ZEBLEY
Senior Reporter

Hamburgers, hamburgers and more hamburgers — 1,014 of them to be exact! Every fall as an opening activity, the BYU 4th Ward gets together and just eats hamburgers.

Saturday, after a sports activity on the lawn in front of the Harman Building, a small pick-up truck pulled up, and hundreds of hamburgers were unloaded while ward members gazed on hungrily.

"It develops unity in the ward and is just something crazy to do," said Jon Hale, a junior from La Brea, Calif.

Hale who is the organizer of the event, said this is the fourth year the ward has had the massive munch-out. The first year, 200 burgers were ordered and eaten, the following year 636, then 837 and this time, 1014 were ordered.

"Next year we're going to order 1,200," he said.

Even though there were only 225 ward members, Hale said the burgers disappeared.

"We get the money together, then put in the order a week before the activity," he said. The bill came to $311, including the discount.

"This is the biggest order for this store," said Vince Engle, general manager of the Provo fast food restaurant that cooked the burgers in less than three hours.

Engle said additional crew members, extra buns and cases of meat were brought in from Salt Lake City to meet the demands of the exceptionally large order.

Every year the hamburger-eating activity gains more munchers.

"At last year's activity, I ate thirteen in one sitting," said Jake McCready, a junior from Saratoga, Calif., majoring in cartography, who has attended the ward hamburger fest all four years.

Robert Bennett, a junior from Sacramento, Calif., majoring in psychology, who also has attended all four years, said it's a fun and crazy thing to do. "We'll do it again next year."

"I ordered 15 burgers this year, and I'll eat them all," said Marshall Briggs, a junior from Manila, Utah, majoring in information management.

In order to raise the needed $300, Hale said the women in the ward are asked to buy $2 worth of burgers and the men are asked to buy $3 worth.

When not enough money was raised to buy the ordered number of hamburgers, Hale and others pitched in and bought more than their share.

Diana Lyn Gibbons, a sophomore from Arbon, Idaho, majoring in organizational psychology, tries to make a dent in a massive pile of hamburgers. For four years the BYU 4th Ward has held a contest to see who can eat the most hamburgers. The restaurant that supplied the hamburgers spent three hours cooking them.

Wheelchairs and athletics unite at handicapped fair

Although wheelchairs and athletics may seem to have nothing in common, they did for the physically handicapped people who came to the BYU Track Saturday for the Handicapped Awareness Fair.

Recreation for the physically handicapped means more than mere socialization; activities are geared to increase physical abilities, said Lana Brown, founder and executive director of Handicapped Awareness in Utah.

Recreation helps the handicapped to be independent in activities of daily living and helps them to maintain their self-esteem and self-worth, she said.

Saturday's event was designed for those individuals who had never participated in athletics, so competition was omitted.

Rondo Poole, one of the instructors at the fair who is physically handicapped himself, told participants "If you're in shape, it's not too bad."

Poole placed third in the 1500 meter, 800 meter and mile relays at the National Wheelchair Games at the University of Hawaii last June.

AT-A-GLANCE

All submissions for At-A-Glance must be received by 1 p.m. the day before the publication. All items must be double-spaced, typed on an 8 1/2 by 11-inch sheet of paper. Items will not be published for more than three consecutive days, and submissions of a commercial nature, or which advertise activities resulting in remuneration to anyone, will not be accepted for publication.

Mission Resumes — Because of lack of space, mission resumption notices will be published in the Wednesday issue. No further mission resumption notices will be taken.

Club Presidents — There will be a meeting for all International Club presidents Thursday, Sept. 29, at 10 a.m. in 220 KMB. We are establishing a new International Committee of which you are a part. Call 278-269.

Big Brother/Sister — The Big Brother/Sister program is accepting applications on the fourth floor ELWC. Volunteers need cars.

Representatives needed — Student representatives are needed to serve on university committees. Contact Gary Ogden on the fourth floor ELWC.

Scholarships available — Three scholarships from the Scholarship Research Institute for $1,000 each are available for all students with a 2.0 GPA or above. Interested students need to go to the Financial Aid Office, A-41 ASB.

Research fund — Money for faculty-approved student research is available through the ASBYU Academic Office. Applications are available at most College Advisement Center or department offices. The deadline to pick up applications is Oct. 7.

Ward Mission Leaders — We, the full-time missionaries here on campus, invite you to come to our office, 343 MARR, anytime between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. We want to help you all we can. Give us a call at 278-2690 to set a time when we can review your ward.

Honors Program — The Honors Program will be today at the Ogden School, 520 N. 600 E. Meet at the school field for an "Almost Anything Goes" competition at 6 p.m., followed by the movie "Taming of the Shrew" at 8 p.m.

Classical guitarist performs tonight

BY ALICE SALMON
Staff Writer
Guitarist Roberto Ferraresi, 29, is an accomplished musician who has performed in the Madison Civic Center, the University of Utah, and the Provo High School. He is also a member of the Provo Symphony Orchestra and the Provo Chamber Music Society. Ferraresi was born in Ferrara, Italy, and moved to Provo in 1979, where he studied at the University of Utah. He has performed in many international competitions, including the 1980 and 1981 competitions in Provo.

Ferraresi has recently toured in Italy and Switzerland with violinist Bruno Landi, vocalist Nella Actis Perino, and harpsichordist Christian Lambour, specializing in chamber music. When Ferraresi came to the United States several months ago "seeking his fortune," he found many differences between the United States and Italy. "America is a very different country from Italy," he said. "America is very special in some ways, and Italy is special in others. In October I will go back to Italy to work and play on tours."

September, Ferraresi has played recitals in Orem, and at the MTC for the Italian missionaries, to give them a taste of Italian classical guitar. After his recital at BYU, Ferraresi will go on to teach two master classes in classical guitar on Wednesday. During tonight's recital, Ferraresi will perform a program of pieces written especially for the classical guitar. "The music I will play was written by the composers especially for the public," Ferraresi said. "It is full of contrasts; dramatic, moody and happy."

The program will center on the compositions of three composers; Giuliani, Sor, and Paganini. According to Ferraresi, Mauro Giuliani was born in Bisceglie, Italy, in 1781 and became the greatest violin virtuoso in all of Europe. He lived most of his life in Vienna, playing with the most important musicians of his day, and was recognized as an equal to Beethoven in talent. He will then play "Grand Solo" by Fernando Sor, a Spanish composer who lived most of his life in Paris and Russia. "This piece can be considered one of the most important compositions of its time for variety of themes and melodic beauty," he said. Tickets for the 8 p.m. recital are available at the music ticket office.

Williams' band called 'amateurish'

TENN. (UPI) — Charlie Daniels says Hank Williams Jr. was "selfish and amateurish" in allowing his performance to run 50 minutes over at a college concert and that's why he pulled the plug on Williams. Williams, son of the late country music legend Hank Williams, was to have played at Tennessee Tech University in Cookeville from 8:10 p.m. to 9:40 p.m. Thursday night. Daniels and the Charlie Daniels Band were to perform from 10:10 p.m. until midnight.

Williams did not stop his act until 10:30 p.m. when a member of Daniels' band pulled the plug on the sound system. "As far as I'm concerned it was one of the most unprofessional things I've ever seen,"

Miss BYU pageant begins

Preliminary competition for the Miss BYU Pageant will be held tonight and Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the ELWC Ballroom. According to Pageant Director Mandy Shelburne, the preliminary pageant will consist of talent, evening gown and oral presentation competitions. According to Shelburne, talent will count about 50 percent, with evening gown and the oral presentation counting about 25 percent each. Twelve finalists will be selected and notified before Friday. Pictures of the finalists will be displayed in the Wilkinson Center.

The preliminaries are being held a week early this year in order to have a more professional pageant. The 12 finalists will really give their all, because each will know that they have a chance to become Miss BYU," she said. Finalists will compete for the title on Oct. 7. One of the peculiarities of the Miss BYU pageant is the absence of a swimsuit competition. The pageant distinguishes inner beauty while other pageants concentrate more on physical appeal, Shelburne said.

'Hill Street,' 'Thorn Birds' tie

HOLLY WOOD (UPI) — The gritty police drama "Hill Street Blues" and the Australian epic the "Thorn Birds" won six statuettes each Sunday night during the most controversial Emmy Awards ceremony in history. More than a hundred viewers called NBC stations throughout the country to complain about co-host Joan Rivers, who called Interior Secretary James Watt an "idiot," insulted the late actress Joan Crawford, used profanity and leveled barbs at homosexuals and prostitutes during the three-hour broadcast on NBC.

NBC overwhelmed its competition with 33 Emmys, ABC had 14 and CBS trailed with 11. PBS won four statuettes and syndicated shows received two awards. "Hill Street Blues," which went into the presentations with 17 nominations, won for best drama series, writing in a drama series, direction, film-sound mixing for a series, and film and sound editing. "Cheers," which won best comedy series, was also awarded Emmys for comedy series writing, directing and graphic design. The awards could be a big boost to the struggling low-rated series. "Special Bulletin," the horrifying view of nuclear disaster

Cougar runners take top honors

Two BYU runners broke the men's and women's course records to capture first places in the BYU-Nike Autumn Cross Country Classic meet Friday at Timpanogos Golf Course.

All-America Ed Eyestone clocked a 28.40 for a new record.

In the men's 6.1-mile race, All-America Ed Eyestone clocked a 28.40 for a new record.

With Holiday's effort, the women's team managed third place with 84 points behind New Mexico's low score of 45 and UCLA's 52-point total. The other Cougar finishers were Carey May, 3rd place; Suzi Tanner, 19th place; Avrii McClung, 24th place; Jocelyn Whitehead, 37th place; and Karen Alexander, 38th place.

The men's team, however, captured first place as Cougar individuals won three out of the top four spots.

Following Eyestone was BYU's Lin Whitcott, who finished second with a time of 29.08. Phil Stevenson of the Provo Track Club was third at 29.39, while Cougar Steve Chipman clocked a 29.40 for fourth place.

The Colorado men's team captured second place with 47 points behind BYU's 30, while the Provo Track Club finished third with 53 points. Following was Idaho State, with a score of 90.

BYU men's cross-country coach Sherald James said he was "very, very pleased with the results this early in the year."

"We have a lot of improving to do but it's still early in the year," he added.

BYU women's coach Patrick Shane said he was "delighted" with Holiday's race, but added that illnesses and injuries caused problems.

Australia II breaks 132-year hold

Liberty loses cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Australia II won the America's Cup Monday, beating the U.S. defender Liberty to break the United States' 132-year hold on the prestigious yachting trophy — the longest winning streak in sports history.

Australia won the unprecedented seventh race of the best-of-seven series by 41 seconds to take the treasured trophy away from the United States.

The Australians started celebrating as soon as they crossed the finish line, ending four months of grueling competition.

Australia II skipper John Bertrand raised a can of beer in a victory salute.

"Our Cup runneth over," a jubilant Bertrand later told a news conference.

Many Australian supporters burst into tears of joy, slapped each other on the backs and cheered the crew, busy hoisting a green flag with a yellow kangaroo in red boxing gloves up the mast of their 12-meter yacht.

Fireworks and cannons exploded in Newport Harbor, hot air balloons soared into the sky and thousands of shouting spectators watched as Bertrand shouted "Hip! Hip! Hooryay!" for Liberty skipper Dennis Connor.

Connor, the first U.S. skipper to lose the Cup, climbed aboard Australia's tender "Black Swan" to offer his personal congratulations.

At the request of the crowd, Australia II was hoisted up to reveal its keel — two blue wings extending 6 feet, like those of a delta-winged bomber.

Australia II came from behind on the fifth leg of the 24.3-mile course in Rhode Island Sound, capitalizing on Liberty's failure to cover.

Australia trailed at the start, grabbed a brief lead on the first leg but was behind around each mark on the first four legs.

But Australia II sailed past Liberty into a 21 lead rounding the fifth buoy.

Bertrand protected his narrow lead in the gentle 8-knot southwesterly breeze by staying in between the Americans and the finish line to shatter America's hold on the gaudy bottomless silver trophy.

Y spikers take own tourney

The BYU women's volleyball team ripped through a field of 24 opposing squads to win its own invitational tournament last weekend, doing it in style.

The Cougars, who now enjoy a NCAA ranking of 11th in the nation went through the tourney without losing a match, dropping only two games during the weekend.

BYU downed Penn State in the championship game Saturday, having defeated the Nittany Lion team in a regular-season match last week.

The title match lasted just three games as the Cougars came back from a 2-0 first-game deficit to take control of the tempo of the match. BYU won the first game 15-12.

After the first game, it was all BYU with Karen Knudsen leading the way for the Cougars. Knudsen was chosen as the tourney MVP, serving and hitting well throughout the weekend. The BYU outside hitter racked up 10 smashes in 17 attempts for an impressive hitting percentage of .529.

The Cougars came out strong in the final two games of the match and pounded the Nittany Lions 15-9 and 15-7.

"We played hard and worked well together tonight," said BYU Coach Elaine Michaelis. "We just didn't let Penn State put together a string of points, and that allowed us to keep the momentum once we overcame the slow start."

Joining Knudsen on the all-tournament team were Cougar teammates Madge Ferreira and Raelyn Huglund, while Socorro Leal received honorable mention.

In the semifinal round, the Cougars outlasted Colorado State 15-9, 13-15, 15-11 and 16-14. BYU also eliminated Utah in quarterfinal action.

The lady spikers continue season action as they travel to Ogden tonight to face the Wildcats of Weber State.

JV griders fall to Ricks, 24-18

The BYU junior varsity football team dropped a 24-18 decision to Ricks College Friday in Rexburg, Idaho.

The Kittens fell behind early after the Vikings scored on two touchdown passes. The Vikings led 17-12 at half time, even though BYU was able to score on an 18-yard run by Tom Tulipatu and two Pete Rossi field goals.

The Kittens' comeback hopes were all but extinguished when starting quarterback David Bates left the game in the third quarter with an injury.

The final BYU TD was tallied when wide receiver J.D. Brookhart tossed a 65-yard bomb to tight end Brett Varoz. But it was too little, too late, since Ricks had scored on a touchdown run earlier in the final quarter.

"I felt the defense played extremely well, considering our injured quarterback and the fact that we had poor field position for most of the game," said BYU Junior Varsity Coach Tom Molen.

"Freeway to Extinction: Man's Earthly Dominion in the 1980s" (Illustrated Lecture)

Burgeoning environmental crisis during the past two decades have brought into much sharper focus the concept of man's dominion over nature and have mandated a clarified definition of the Judeo-Christian ethic. Among other things, man has exhibited an unfortunate tendency to judge the worth of other species on the basis of the value to mankind and has neglected to consider their probable roles in the changing ecosystems of the future as they are viewed and studied by an enlightened posterity. Whereas man has historically exercised his option (in thinking) to do whatever he wanted, assuming it was his God-given right and obligation to do so, it has recently become obvious that this abuse can no longer be tolerated. The philosophies of St. Francis of Assisi, who held was the duty of all creatures to love one another, are now being given increasingly thoughtful consideration instead of almost universal ridicule. Manifestations of this are seen in the federal Endangered Species Act and similar legislation enacted at the state level.

As he proceeds in this direction, man will necessarily re-define the true meaning and intent of his dominion which, he will find, is essential to his own survival. It is both interesting and ironic that man's survival is so inextricably linked with his dominion over his fellow creatures. This may prove to be the greatest test ever given him, for if he is successful in exercising a righteous dominion it is reasonable to expect that he will continue to exist. If he is not successful, it becomes only a matter of time until he, too, will perish from the earth. It is a great challenge and a sobering thought.

takes own soccer tourney

By MARK CARPENTER
Staff Writer

U's soccer team won two matches over the weekend to claim the BYU Invitational Soccer tournament championship and improve its record.

Soccercats defeated Northwest Nazarene Friday and won their fourth straight game by beating Westminster College 4-1 Saturday.

Coach Jim Dusara said the fact that the team is taking more shots at the goal is helping win. And the Soccercats had plenty of shots to defend.

BYU still had trouble scoring.

"I should have had six goals tonight," said a player after Friday's win. "Sometimes our luck is good."

Despite a number of offensive threats by the Soccercats, Northwest Nazarene scored first in Friday's contest.

BYU came back quickly. Seconds after the Nazarene goal, forward Bruce Crook kicked to set up a free kick. Scott Snelson put the ball past the goalie to knot the score at 1-1.

The score remained deadlocked until the second half when BYU's Toby Mesquita headed the ball into the net after a pass from teammate Randy Russo.

"In the second half we started moving the ball and completely dominated," said Dusara after the game. "We are taking more shots but need to be more accurate."

The Soccercats started Saturday's contest similar to Friday's — they couldn't get the ball into the goal.

Westminster had one close shot at a goal in the first period which was saved by BYU goalkeeper Ted Thurston, resulting in a scoreless tie at the break.

With less than two minutes gone in the second period, the Soccercats got on the scoreboard when Mesquita scored after a taking pass from Crook.

BYU increased its lead to 2-0 midway through the period when Guillermo Padilla knocked the ball past Westminster's goalie.

Seconds later, forward Kevin Schindler scored to move the Soccercats to a three-point advantage after a number of BYU shots failed to reach the goal.

Dusara made use of a strong BYU bench, giving many of the young players an opportunity to play while resting the starters.

Westminster's only score came late in the game when the outcome was already determined.

Dusara emphasized the important contributions toward the Soccercats' victories of the players who came off the bench.

BYU assistant coach Dave Wright also complimented two of BYU's freshmen, Bruce Hilton and Randy Russo, for their good play.

"Our freshmen are maturing very fast in the college game," said Wright.

Another of BYU's freshmen, Joseph Ngassa, was selected as the tournament's Most Valuable Player. BYU also placed four players on the tournament all-star squad. Joining Ngassa were Snelson, Crook and Padilla.

The Soccercats travel to San Diego this week where they will face San Diego State on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, the team will participate in the U.S. International Invitational Tournament, to be played also in San Diego.

Y set to defend tourney crown in New Mexico

The BYU men's golf team defends its team title at the William H. Tucker golf classic in Albuquerque, N.M. this week.

Last year's three top teams in the NCAA championship tourney — Oklahoma State, Texas and Houston — are scheduled to compete, as well as squads from USC, UCLA, Arizona State, Arizona, Texas A&M and host New Mexico.

Cougar baseball team wins fall scrimmages

A bombardment of runs by the BYU baseball team helped the Cougars defeat the Colorado Northwestern Spartans 6-4, 16-0, 11-0 and 13-2 in four scrimmage games last Saturday.

The Cougars proved it was no contest as they powered their way to their victories with a barrage of home runs and doubles helping to bury the Spartans.

A mixture of varsity players, walk-ons and freshmen played against the Colorado junior college team. The contests were designed to give the team members game experience, according to BYU pitching coach Bob Noel.

"Also to give hitters a chance to bat against someone they've never seen. And so the pitchers could throw against hitters they know nothing about," added Noel.

Noel evaluated the defense as being a little ahead of last year's Western Athletic Conference championship squad, but the pitching and hitting is about equal for the same time of year, he appraised.

The Cougars will be in action against Mesa State in Provo this Saturday, with a doubleheader scheduled to start at 1 p.m.

Women golfers finish second

BYU's women golfers lost the team title to Washington by two strokes Saturday in the Weber State Women's Collegiate Invitational Golf Tournament at the Wolf Creek Country Club in Eden, Utah.

Washington won the 54-hole tournament with a team score of 945, while BYU was second at 947. Host Weber State finished third at 959.

In the individual honors, Weber State's Kerri Clark easily won the top spot with a score of 226. BYU's Kelli Antolock tied for second with a 228.

Campus clubs target recruits at Club Week

By Scott D. Pierce
Staff Writer

Campus clubs are recruiting members at the annual Club Week which will continue through Friday in the ELWC Garden Court, according to Robyn Farnsworth, programs director.

More than 25 clubs are operating booths aimed at informing students and signing up new members. A wide variety of clubs operate on campus. Students can choose from academic, social, service and special interest groups, she said.

The booths will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

Among the academic clubs is the Premed Club, which has been newly reactivated, according to President Mike Smith, a senior from Peru, Ind. majoring in microbiology.

Smith said his club will be conducting demonstrations this week and he is hoping to increase the present membership of approximately 100.

Val Hyrie is also new on campus. "We are a social unit for bettering the educated man," said Dan Cron, a senior from Hanover, Mass. majoring in microbiology.

Both Democrats and Republicans operate clubs on campus. The College Democrats' goal is to expose the BYU community to the Democratic Party, according to Vice-President Fernando Kemmitzer, a junior from Madrid, Spain, studying international relations.

The College Republicans' purpose is to promote Republican ideals, supply manpower to campaigns and provide leadership opportunities, said Vice-President Chris Kroll, a sophomore from Detroit, Mich., majoring in political science.

Orem accident injures 3 people

Three cars were involved in an early-morning accident Monday in Orem.

Corrine Shumway, of 777 S. Stubbs Ave. in Provo, was driving east on 1200 South Sandhill Road in Orem at 7:35 a.m., when she turned left and collided head-on with a Chevrolet pickup truck, said Capt. Jay Barker of the Orem Police. The truck was driven by David Vallett, of 375 N. 1020 East in Provo.

The third car, a Datsun driven by Shirley McKinnon, of 1165 Center in Spanish Fork, swerved to avoid the accident, overturned and rolled off the road, Barker said.

OPINION

Students need 'real' difference

One of the founding principles of this nation was that of adequate representation. The cry "no taxation without representation" was a powerful motivator behind the formation of a democracy that has lasted more than 200 years.

During these past 200 years, many attempts have been made to abuse this principle. But the citizens of this nation have withstood such efforts, for they know that to lose representation could foreshadow the end of freedom.

UNIVERSE OPINION

Adequate representation has also served the students and faculty well at BYU. The administration has allowed students to participate in committees that review existing policies and formulate new ones.

Student representation on administrative committees has helped in many ways to improve the quality of our education at BYU. One such example of good student representation is the increase in football and basketball tickets available to students.

But the administration's decision to prohibit wigs and painted faces at athletic events points out some flaws in the system. One of the questions raised is how effective can two student representatives be on a committee of 12 college deans and administrators.

Both of the two students who served on the university's athletic and special events advisory board said they expressed the opinion that wigs are OK and that the wigs permit students to have more fun at games. That opinion was countered by the view of administrators that wigs could cause more problems than they are worth.

After discussing the issue, the entire committee — including the students — voted unanimously for a recommendation calling for respect and dignity at athletic events.

This recommendation was seen as the support that led to the final approval of the no-wig policy. While both students voted for the "respect and dignity" recommendation, they were originally against it, and still are. But it was the students' first meeting to discuss policy; thus it is hard to see how they could not have been influenced — and possibly intimidated — by the large majority of administrators advocating the policy.

One wonders if the students thought their votes would have only made the vote 12-2 in favor of the policy. But if students are to serve on committees, they should know that their votes do "make a difference." The administration must realize that a 12-2 ratio of administrators to students may not reflect an "adequate representation" of students. It should strive to allow students to play a more important role in advising the university on student views. If students are not allowed to voice their opinions, they should not agree to serve on committees.

Student representation is badly needed at BYU to fully express the student viewpoint. Student representatives should realize they have been entrusted with a sacred obligation: to vote for what they think is right and to vote for what the student body at BYU wants, needs and requires.

Students who vote for a policy they are against do little service to the voters who trusted them enough to elect them to office. As representatives, they should have enough backbone to stand up when the odds are against them and really "make a difference."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Backbone

Editor:
Regarding the recent vote to have dignity at athletic events, Brothers Wright and Clark — What's with you guys? Let's show a little backbone. If you are not in agreement with the policy, don't vote for it. How do you think you guys got elected? That kind of voting just reinforces the popular opinion that ASBYU is nothing more than a puppet government.

Speaking of voting, do you want to know how to improve ASBYU voter turnout? Try putting to a vote whether or not to abolish ASBYU. The ASBYU funds could then be used for something worthwhile.

Now, about dignity. Some nut in a cougar suit acting stupid is not my idea of dignity, nor is it dignified for those in a position to effect change to refuse to stand behind their convictions.

Beards bad

Editor:
I am a full-time student here at BYU. I purchased football tickets for me and my husband to attend the games this year. My husband went to get a spouse card so that he could attend the games with me. He was told that he could not get a spouse card because he has a beard. Upon inquiring the reasoning behind this, we were told that it was because a person with a beard could be used by BYU facilities. Well that's a bunch of baloney. My husband can use BYU facilities, but he has to come as my guest, not as my spouse. We had to go and buy a guest pass so that he could attend the football game with me. I can understand how BYU has jurisdiction over me, because I am a student here and I signed the honor code. But I don't understand how BYU can have a dictatorship over my spouse. All a spouse card says is that a person is married to a BYU student so a husband and wife can attend activities together. IfBYU is going to have jurisdiction over whom we students marry, BYU should set up Spouse Approval Office. Before a BYU student gets married, he has to have his spouse-to-be sign the honor code and be approved by the Spouse Approval Office. I think it is ridiculous that my husband has to accompany me to any campus activity as my guest and not as my spouse.

Y grounds: overgrown or underfed PRO

It may be going out on a limb to suggest that meticulous landscaping is at the root of laudatory statements about BYU's beautiful campus.

It has to be the landscaping. Our architecturally nondescript buildings (with one controversial exception) would be hum-drum were they not shrouded in leafy glory. In fact, every cubic inch on campus that is not animal or mineral is most assuredly vegetative.

No problem, you say. Perhaps not. Who could quibble with the Grounds Department's tender care of the greenery? Verdant bank, reedy brook and shady lane add tranquility to the relative peace of collegiate life. But at what cost? Cost that would be better put to student scholarships and financial aid.

No one will talk about costs. But even without budget statements in hand, a casual stroll across the calculator still reveals much about the capital outlay for trees, shrubbery, sod and bedding plants.

The JKHB parking lot — the parking lot, to say nothing of the bordering lawn areas — has 34 trees planted in the middle of it. The Marriott Center has 52 trees in the lot alone.

The lot just west of the stadium stands unplanted, a fertile field awaiting the plow. That shade is nevertheless bordered by 45 shade trees and 15 new concrete planters pieced together from what must certainly have been Orem Diagonal drive rejects.

A Provo landscape nursery manager said the average cost of a shade tree 2 inches in diameter is $125 to $300 depending on the variety. The local delivery and planting of that tree may cost $75 to $125 depending on the site and soil type.

Landscape money could better serve Y students

Taking the lower end of these estimates, the Marriott lot trees conservatively cost $10,400.

These figures do not consider the enormous cost of maintaining the greenery. The need to mow, edge, weed, feed, water, rake, mulch, prune and spade the Y's acres of foliage creates 200 to 300 part-time student positions at any one time, Peterman said.

If the money paid out for these jobs were made available to those working students as scholarships, stipends, and low-cost loans, their need to work would be lessened. The speed with which they could finish school would increase, clearing the way for more tender shoots to enter and climb up the educational trellis.

There are those who will trot out the Protestant work ethic as a righteous reason to wax dewy-eyed over Grounds Department jobs. The reality of education expenses argues loudly that a student's primary job is pressing forward unfettered to graduation and earning power.

There is virtue in making any place lovely through horticulture. The vice here lies in its excess. BYU campus can be beautifully if less abundantly maintained at far less than the present cost.

Growth and flowers are lovely. The growth of fertile minds is lovelier still.

Campus trees create atmosphere for studying

Beauty persuades. A visitor to the campus sees the grounds first — not the accomplishment of the graduate students, nor the football statistics.

BYU's grounds make the first impression that is vital in any persuasion process. People are more willing to give money to successful institutions. BYU's well manicured grounds give the campus a refined look. BYU looks like a successful institution.

Roy Peterman, head of BYU's Grounds Department, said visitors immediately notice the cleanliness of the buildings and grounds on campus. "That's what they (visitors) see first," he said.

BYU Grounds successfully achieve their purpose.

Part of that purpose is "to provide an atmosphere of excellence and serenity" and to create "an optimum atmosphere for learning and inspiration."

The campus grounds have received nationwide praise. The Professional Grounds Society has rated BYU's grounds as the best kept ones in a university setting.

National magazines have commented on the beauty and cleanliness of BYU's physical appearance. This physical presentation includes the students and the buildings, but the grounds are the largest and most stunning part of the campus physical aspect.

One of BYU's purposes is to present the alternative LDS lifestyle to the world, a beautiful and serene alternative lifestyle. The grounds and the dress code reflect the physical aspects of a conservative religious lifestyle.

BYU spends no more money on landscaping than any other unit of its size. Grounds Director Peterman said, "The overall b is very much the same for any university this size."

Non-LDS turn Y into den of sinners

Editor's note: Mike Montrose wrote this humorous satire after being a non-Mormon at BYU for three years. Mike joined the LDS church this summer in New York.

What's all this I hear about non-members here at BYU? I'm appalled! There must be some mistake. You see, I paid my tuition to join the ranks of the chosen few in the "Lord's University."

Well, O.K., I do remember hearing something about a non-Mormon quarterback on the football team a couple of years ago, but I had no idea there are actually 700 gentiles on our campus. My heck, to think I may have accidentally talked to one of them!

I cringe at the thought of my poor, little, old, gray-haired mother hearing this scandalous information. She scraped and saved every penny just to send me here. She did it to get me away from the negative influence of all those second-rate people who don't belong to our church, and, of course, she wants me to find an eternal mate. My dad says non-Mormons are not to be trusted. "They are different from us, son," he says, "and you must avoid them at all costs."

But as if letting them go to school here isn't enough, I read last week in The Daily Universe, the "Lords" newspaper, we're actually letting Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Congregationalists and a gap in Catholicism have their own little head office in a building right here on the holy soil of this campus! Why, who knows what kind of anti-Mormon schemes they will dream up from this new vantage point.

This whole affair has gotten way out of hand, and we must act now to rid ourselves of the threat that threatens to defile the nourishment and light in our celestial garden of learning.

May I remind our administrators that this campus was built on sweat, muscle and tithing. Latter-day Saint forefathers. A small em been built here in Provo, and here we are, "the enemy" behind our lines to undermine whole operation.

But these misguided souls are not to be entirely. Their presence here is obviously one himself, trying to take control of and our great institution. Through these 700 Mormons, he is slowly but surely eating a very foundation of what has made our little slice of heaven tickle it is.

If we cannot rid ourselves of these propose that we make them do a large, "N M" on their foreheads, to distinguish non-members, thereby protecting our sheep.

Thank heavens we at least charge their tuition.

No vacancy sign flashes for couples

Married students are in desperate need of quality, reasonably priced housing near campus. In Provo, there is only one apartment for every four couples, while there are two vacancies for each single student.

At least two weeks before this semester 115 apartment complexes, appearing on a list of married student housing compiled by BYU, were completely rented. Also, most vacancies advertised in local newspapers had been filled.

To live in Wymount or Wyview, which offer 742 apartments and 150 mobile homes, a couple must keep their name on a waiting list for at least 18 months for a fall or winter semester vacancy and six months for a spring- or summer-term spot.

The number of married students at BYU has steadily increased over the last few years and will probably continue to increase. But the problem will not simply disappear.

Building new married housing units or converting apartments for single students to married housing would be a smart move for apartment owners or prospective owners. A landlord would not make as much from two couples at $200 per couple as from six single tenants at $100 apiece. But the tenant would pay off at other ways.

Married tenants tend to take good care of apartments because they view them as homes. Married students have no room blame for holes in the walls or end of the messes. One of the couple is responsible, money for repairs and cleaning comes from the same pocket. Thus the incentive to be responsible. It's doubtful landlords would find themselves with vacancies they couldn't fill there is a big demand for married housing.

Inventor expands environment

What do fields of crops have to do with television? Nothing, unless you are Philo T. Farnsworth, a former BYU student who invented the first television camera.

Farnsworth and three other inventors were honored Wednesday when 20-cent stamps went on sale commemorating their achievements.

Farnsworth's stamp carries the words "first television camera" and shows his face and an early version of his invention.

The stamp might just as appropriately show crops — not out of respect for the man, but rather out of respect for the cultivation of the mind. And the crops represent just that — literally.

An article in the Sept. 15 issue of the Deseret News said Farnsworth developed the idea of scanning, making a picture with a series of horizontal lines, while looking at the rows of crops in Jefferson County (Idaho) fields.

Farnsworth looked at his environment, but visualized a new idea. He saw horizontal waves which could be used to make a picture.

The invention of the television camera is significant because it expanded our environment. Through the eyes of the camera, onto our television screens and into our come a variety of ideas. B and bad ideas stem from this ment.

Either way the ideas are a To find and cultivate the go we often must look beyond vious.

Like Farnsworth, we must look at the obviou the unobvious, and apply ledge we have to the creatio ideas. Only then is it poss associate fields of crops with vision cameras.

Great show!

Editor:
YES! The Police, America's favorite rock/punk band do offer the students of BYU something praiseworthy and of good report. Last year Journey, another favorite, put on a show never to be forgotten by thousands; along these lines are the Police.

Incorporating an environment of good music, very good entertainment, the Police bring with them an atmosphere that most students will see as a pleasant change. One would think that the administration would
